The UNC Undergraduate Honor System is accepting applications for the 2023-2024 school year! You can apply to be a member of the Honor Court, the Attorney General's Staff, or the Outreach Branch!

The Honor System is a student-led organization at UNC that is responsible for promoting the ideals of honor and integrity throughout the University community. Members of the Undergraduate Schools Honor Courts are responsible for hearing and adjudicating alleged violations of the Honor Code during Honor Court hearings, in which members hear evidence and testimony as presented by the Student Attorney General's Staff, accused student(s), and reporting parties. Honor System Outreach works to educate professors and students about their rights and responsibilities as outlined under the Instrument, and to promote integrity, honor, and accountability in the Carolina community. It is a great way to get involved in the Judicial Branch! To learn more about the Honor System, visit <https://studentconduct.unc.edu/honor-system/honor-system-branches/>.

If you have any questions, reach out to the Outreach Coordinator, Elizabeth Gilchrist, at elizgil@ad.unc.edu!

Apply for one of the Honor System Branches below! The application is open until September 10th!

Portfolio Management Team 2023-2024 Recruiting

The Portfolio Management Team (PMT) is a student managed, long-only equity investment fund that exists to provide competitively selected UNC undergrads with an immersive equity portfolio management experience. In addition to successfully managing the fund, PMT sets out to facilitate an investor-focused mindset and strong analytical skills in its members, along with a supportive community that propels all members towards success.

Finally, PMT prides itself on providing members with extensive recruiting resources and continuous support from upperclassmen. The PMT alumni network is expansive and includes past members who are now at top investment banks, private equity firms, venture capital firms, and more. Specifically, recent placement has included internships and full-time roles at Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley, KKR & Co., Evercore, PJT Partners, J.P. Morgan, and more.

Opportunities with the Carolina Political Review

The Carolina Political Review is a student-run publication that specializes in political and cultural journalism, with a particular focus on writing analysis pieces. We publish in Local, National, and Global sections of the news as well as opinion pieces/op-eds and interviews. We are currently recruiting both undergraduate and graduate staff writers and podcast contributors for this spring semester. It is fairly low-commitment, where we ask that writers sign up to write an article every two weeks – although we accept and have writers that write less frequently than that, as their schedules allow. You can visit the CPR website here. Anyone who is interested in writing for the CPR should fill out the Google Form below before September 3rd. For any questions about the CPR, please reach out to me at noahjoe@email.unc.edu
