Research Assistant Opportunities at the American Enterprise Institute

My name is John Towey and I manage the economic studies program at the American Enterprise Institute. Each year I hire a handful of economics students from top schools directly out of undergraduate studies to work as research assistants with our economic studies scholars. In recent years, AEI economics RAs have gone on to Ph.D. programs at Harvard, Berkeley, Cornell, Columbia, Penn, Wisconsin, UCSD, Michigan, Johns Hopkins, and NYU, among other great universities. Our RAs have also gone on to JD or MBA programs at top universities, including Harvard, Yale, Chicago, and NYU.

Research assistants typically spend around two years working closely with our scholars. We pride ourselves on matching RAs interested in doctoral studies with scholars doing peer-reviewed research. Those RAs see papers develop from start to finish and become experts at the data analysis, coding, and econometric methods that will make them attractive to Ph.D. programs and will help them succeed in graduate school. Exceptional RAs often have the opportunity to coauthor with our economists.

We are actively recruiting for this position and anticipate making job offers before the end of the calendar year.

UNC's New Student & Family Programs (NSFP) Recruitment Opportunities

We're currently recruiting student leaders for our Orientation Leader (OL) and Week of Welcome (WOW) Board positions. These roles are crucial in helping our new first-year and transfer students transition smoothly and fostering a sense of belonging, early in their Carolina experience. Students of any major are eligible. This is a paid, para-professional experience that enhances the career readiness and leadership development of our students.

Academic Writing Opportunity for Economics Students

The UNC-Chapel Hill student-run philosophy journal, Aperto Animo, is accepting applications for staff positions until December 8, 2023. This is a great opportunity to get involved in a meaningful project and gain valuable experience in academic writing. Although Aperto Animo is expressly a philosophy journal, many of the submissions it receives are multi-disciplinary. Ergo, students of any major are encouraged to apply. Advanced knowledge of philosophy is not required.
